Your future friends, your future career, your future life. But that comes later.

In this moment, you’re here — at Oregon State University. And your time is now.

Now is that feeling when you step onto campus. The towering trees, the one-of-a-kind buildings, the people and their personalities. This place is alive.

Now is meeting your best friends, working hard, making discoveries and turning ideas into reality. Oh, and having fun.

Here is all of that wrapped into one.

You will fit in.
You will learn.
You will grow.

Here, you’ll be taught by people who want you to learn with your mind and your hands — to solve problems for the good of others across the globe.

And you’ll leave here different than you were before. Better.

Here is the now and the later.

At Oregon State, you will do great things.

Here, you are Beaver Nation.
